EASTER MUSIC IN THE CHURCHES

Excellent Programmes have been Arranged by Choir Directors and there will be a Number of Cantatas and Concerts.

The programmes for the music in the churches on Easter as given below show the conscientious work of the choir directors in their selection and promise the added charm which music Hymn 153, Wm. Filby gives to the Easter services. There are this year several cantatas which will be sung by the choirs and a number of Sunday school exercises and con-certs have been arranged, many of them being held in the afternoon. The programmes are as follows:

UNION FAST DAY

Rev. E. S. Worcester and prayer of-ered by Rev. Lawellyn Pratt, D. D. The morning's anthem was Calvary, beautifully sung by Mrs. A. E. Story and the choir. The sermon by Rev. S. H. Howe, D. D. was taken from Isaiah 63: 3-5, "I have trodden the wine press alone; the power of the wine press alone; and of the people there was none with me. I looked and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold; therefore mine own arm brought salvation. The prophet unonsciously anticipated the victorious work of the lonely but triumphant Messiah. Beginning with the thought of God's vindication of Israel and the put ishment of her ancient foe, the priphetic massage flows off into widor meanings than he intended. The instrument of vengeance disappears into the instrument of salvation. The central thought in the prophets words is the solitariness and utter loneliness of the speaker. It is the cry of the solitary soul. One life above all others was so lonely and solitary as to be an unfathomed deep to us. We try this day of Passion week and on this culminating hour of God's Friday to fix our eye upon the one supreme Solitary of all history. It is the one day when, detaching himself from all men, he stands alone in awful and unshares, solitude. From the eternal mystery he came and went alone. We share in a difference of the surface of the machine shop of the search in the prophets words in force of the machine shop of the solitary of all history. It is the one day when, detaching himself from all men, he stands alone in awful and unshares, solitude. From the eternal mystery he came and went alone. We share in a difference of the solitary of all history. We share in a difference of the machine shop of the sands alone in awful and unshares, solitude. From the eternal mystery he came and went alone. We share in a difference with a fixed property in a difference with a fixed property in a fixed pro solitude. From the eternal mystery he came and went alone. We share in a degree an experience of this mystery and solitude in which He perpetually walked. We have common ground with Him in the solitude of unshared per-sonality. The sense of comradeship and share in the common life of others He had, too. We seem never out of sight or earshot of human influence and yet there are moments when there falls upon us the sense of an awful and subduing solitariness, when we realize that here at the heart of things we are alone and no eye watching us but the Divine. Here is a vast and roomy world where passions burrow and motives play and thought soars and resolutions are formed and battles won or lost. Here are temptations men must meet alone. The result of the hidden battle, shows in the one held in open day. Then there is the solltude of penitence and faith, where human voices and wills are impotent to help. There is also the solltude of a great task. It is one of the penalties of greatness that t gets assignment to great undertak-ngs which isolate it. Moses, David, he prophets, Paul, Luther, Knox, Wilthe Silent, Cromwell, Washington and Lincoln are examples. But one figure on the horizon stands in a sollngure on the norizon stands in a soli-tary grandeur to whom none can be compared. He is a class all his own. He walked solitary among men for two rearons—the sheer mass and loftiness of his personality and his great task. We understand other men who have lived, but not Him, His nature was so menifold.

No other wrought such mighty deeds or had such far-reaching plans. His included the whole human race. He drew to Him hundreds of millions of people. Just this magnitude of his world plans made him so unintelligible to triangle and for any same him intelligible. to friend and foe and sent him into solitude even with the Syrian multi-tudes at his feet. It was the solitude of an unimperted and uncomprehendof an unimperted and uncomprehended secret that not a contemporary remotely comprehended till the mission was ended. Two great facts of redemption are God's coming to us and His return to God. Let us return to the scene on Good Friday. Of helpers there were none. No human footstep was heard at his side—be trod the wine press alone. The nation fell away from Him, His friends deserted and His disciples forsook, He walked along the Via Dolorosa. At Calvary the solitude deepened. There were a few tear stained faces among the watchers—but the multitude were there to wit—but the multitude were there to wit but the multitude were there to witness an execution. The crowd mocked and wrung a moment's sensation out of the scene, the soldiers gambled for Tantum Ergo (tenor and alto duet).

of the scene, the soldiers gambled for his garments and his enemies had their little hour of triumph. The caravame in the king of the interest and departed from the city and the Roman legions moved unthinking about their tasks. The life of the boary old east did not break its pace—though that solitary sufferer would below to some day all its age old super-retitions. And yet the picture of lone-retitions. And yet the world—but a deeper derivers fell. For one dark hour his Father's face would with-draw. For one awful moment that white soul was to look alone into the face of the ghastly sins of the world, to bear their scorn and their contempt, to view their heart rending, detastable, maddening scenes with the face of the Father hidden. But let us remember that when that hour of desolation was ended and the cry went up "It is finthat when that hour of desolation was ended and the cry went up "it is finished!" those ugly shapes of human evil had lost their power and that when the sun breaks from the clouds on Easter morning it will be upon a world redeemed and to Him will be the clory forever.

How to Prevent It. Let Kodol Do the Stomach's Work While It Rests.

A weak stomach will not properly digest food. This food, then, occasions all sorts of disagreeable symptoms. Among these are sour stomach, toms. Among these are sour stomach, beiching of gas and bitter fluid, "heartburn," headaches, etc. — all caused by indigestion. But it isn't of much benefit to know what causes the trouble, if we do not know how to prevent it—and make use of our knowledge. Nearly everyone knows that Kodol digests all food, and is an excellent preparation for any digestive excellent preparation for any digestive trouble. Actual figures shows that a tablespeonful of Kodol digests 2½ pounds of food—not one kind of food at a time, but every kind of food, in any mixture or combination—and Kodol digests it in an easy, natural as an ordinary, healthy way-just as an ordinary, healthy stomach does. That is why Kodol helps the weak stomach get strongthe does the stomach's work. Our guarantes: Get a dollar bottle of Kodol. If you are not benefited—the druggist will at once return your money. Don't hesitate; any druggist will sell you Kodol on these terms. The dollar bettle contains 2% times as much as the 50c bottles. Kodol is prepared in the laboratories of E. C. Chicago. NORWICH TOWN.

In America the dandruff garms

In America the dandruff germs must go. The war of extermination has been declared. The battle has begun, and already thousands of intelligent Americans have permanently rid themselves of this filthiness.

Today it is no more necessary for a man to have dandruff in his hair than to have tartar on his teeth.

Dandruff can never he cured until the small, aggravating and indomitable dandruff garm is conquered and destroyed.
